Schools focus on prevention

Balen: Violence could happen here

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Granite City School District Superintendent Steve Balen said there is a problem with school violence, and it can happen here.

Because of that, school and police officials are taking a serious look at violence and how to prevent and deal with it.

Balen and Granite City Police Chief Dave Ruebhausen discussed school safety at Wednesday's Granite City Rotary Prayer Breakfast. While the issue is receiving more attention due to the recent school shooting in Littleton, Colo., both Balen and Ruebhausen said they have been discussing it for some time.

The district and police department are working on a set of plans for dealing with various scenarios, ranging from a student with a concealed weapon to multiple snipers.

Balen and Ruebhausen both mentioned that a police officer is stationed at the high school full time now.

"Anybody who can look at the facts and tell me there is no problem is either out of their mind or out of touch."

Balen said that right now, there are no "experts" on school safety, although there is a "large body" of knowledge. He said one of his biggest concerns is people who say there is not a problem with school violence and that it can't happen here.

"Anybody who can look at the facts and tell me there is no problem is either out of their mind or out of touch," he said.

Balen said there are a number of serious issues in dealing with school violence, including students becoming desensitized to violence, the

Granite prepared for Y2K

Millennium bug not to affect city

By Michael Heil
Staff writer

Granite City residents are being reassured that the anticipated year 2000 computer glitch will not leave them without electricity or emergency service.

"I have a positive attitude that the city will not experience any Y2K problems when the calendar rolls over to Jan. 1," said Ray Schultz, the city's emergency services coordinator.

Schultz spoke at the Granite City Council meeting Tuesday evening. He was asked by Mayor Ron Selpin in January to contact utility companies to check their status on Y2K. Each company reported that it would be Y2K-ready by June.

Schultz also contacted the fire and police departments, and other city departments. They all said their computers

Worker's death ruled accident

Safety harness suspected in Granite City Steel mill fatality

By Curtiss A. Hartley
Staff writer

The use of a safety harness seems to be suspect in the death of a worker who fell to his death while dismantling a furnace at Granite City Steel last month.

A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that the death of Gerald L. Pacheco, 28, of the 300 block of Osprey, Pontoon Beach, was accidental.

Pacheco was dragged off a tower and fell nearly 47 feet when part of his safety gear was hooked by one of the 220-pound copper coolers that he and his co-workers were pushing to the ground. The accident happened just after 3 a.m. April 19. Pacheco was pronounced dead at St. Elizabeth's Hospital at 3:32 a.m. An autopsy showed the cause of death to be abdominal blunt trauma.

Detective Sgt. Jeff Parker of the Granite City Police Department, testified at the coroner's inquest that Pacheco's supervisor, Glen Stoecklin, checked to see that Pacheco was wearing the required safety harness before he climbed the tower.

"Stoecklin watched the work from below to make sure the area was clear," Parker said. "He saw the deceased fall and flip three or four times, and land on his back on

Long-time county official dies

Stille, who was also Edwardsville Township supervisor, dead at 70

By Paul Mackie
Staff writer

Friends, family and public officials were shocked to learn that one of Edwardsville's chief ambassadors died Wednesday morning.

Robert "Bob" Stille, 70, died at about 9:30 a.m. at Barnes-Jewish Hospital in St. Louis from non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, a slow-growing form of cancer that the Edwardsville Township supervisor had battled for four years.

"There's probably nobody in Edwardsville who is more of an Edwardsvillian," said Stille's wife of nearly 47 years, Wanda.

New fire station planned

Facility to be located near ball diamond

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

The city of Madison is moving ahead with plans for a new fire station.

The Council on Tuesday approved seeking qualifications from architectural firms interested in designing the station, which would be located near the city's Third Street ball diamond. The property is the former junior high school site and recently was given to the city by the Madison School Board.

Mayor John Hamm said several architects have expressed interest in the project.

In addition to the fire station, the city would use most of the remaining land for parking and recreational space. Hamm also said there was a possibility the ball diamond might be moved to another spot on the property.

He said that even though the Casey's General Store

under construction has put up a 20-foot fence, a number of ballplayers have hit home runs on to the store's property, and Hamm is afraid somebody eventually might be hurt.

Pate Philip is unique politician

Senate president speaks his mind — no matter the consequences

"Most of my friends... I think they'll tell you that every once in a while the referee or umpire ought to get popped — and pop him good."

That was Illinois Senate President Pate Philip, speaking against a bill that would impose a $1000 fine for assaulting a sports official.

Philip took a lot of heat in the press for that remark. One Chicago columnist even referred to him as a "moron."

People ask-tsked all over the state when they read Pate's quote, but most people at the Statehouse either shook their heads slowly or chuckled out loud and then said, as one, "That's Pate."

He says that kind of stuff all the time.

Now, if you think I'm building up to some sort of defense, you're wrong, even though I believed the ex-Marine when he said a few days later that he was just making a joke.

But you have to appreciate the fact that Pate Philip is a unique specimen in modern American politics.

I have this theory that if you walk into a DuPage County VFW club on a rainy Wednesday afternoon and go to the back room where the old guys are playing cards and choose just one man at random, he'll be just like Pate Philip.

Pate embodies the values of older, white, suburbanites who worked hard and eventually carved out a pretty decent existence for themselves and their families.

In many ways, he is DuPage County. You may not always agree with him, but you can't deny that he accurately reflects a large portion of his district.

Most politicians agonize over every word that they speak in public. Pate speaks his mind, whatever that happens to be at the moment.

That trait makes him highly popular among reporters. We love to toss him questions just to see how he reacts. We wait patiently in hallways for hours on end in the hopes that he'll come out and talk to us. We even jump on elevators with him after impromptu press conferences.

Just to make sure that we catch any nuggets that he might be willing to share. Actually, as I write this, it occurs to me that my occupation is a little weird. Maybe even very weird. Thankfully, that stakeout stuff is only a small part of the job.

I was talking to a newspaper columnist friend a few weeks ago and he mentioned that he was planning to do a piece on Pate Philip. The other day, I asked him how his column was coming along. He said he had hoped to really sock it to Pate, and he said he intended to do it by using quotes from people who he assumed would say nasty things about the guy. But he eventually gave up the project when he realized that nobody was going to give him any juicy quotes. Even the Democrats who he was sure would dump all over the guy made excuses for him.

Part of the reason for that may be that Pate became a hero of sorts by squaring off against his fellow Republican Jim Edgar so many times. As I've told you before, Edgar was very unpopular at the Statehouse, even though his popularity with the electorate was quite high. Pate won over many hearts and minds by doing things to Edgar like killing over a hundred of his nominations to boards and commissions with one fell swoop.

But the biggest reason why Pate is so popular, even among his would-be enemies, is that he conducts himself in a manner that the vast majority of politicians, lobbyists, staffers and even reporters can only dream about. Who hasn't joked about mauling an umpire after a bad call? But what modern-day politician would ever say that he thinks sports officials occasionally deserve a pop in the nose? Many Statehouse types envy Pate for being so secure in his own position that he can say and do whatever he wants and get away with it. In a way, they live vicariously through him. He's the John Wayne of Illinois politics.

So, the next time you read that Pate has gotten himself into trouble yet again, just remember that a whole bunch of people in Springfield are quietly cheering him on, even if they don't like what he said.

Letters to the editor

Granite City lucky to have Jerry Lakin

TO THE EDITOR: It was a surprise to me that Jerry Lakin was unopposed for superintendent of streets.

Many of us feel he and his department are doing a great job.

As an example, two years ago I called him regarding a stop sign on Maryville Road which was down lower than normal and surrounded by signs from a service station and confectionary, which made it difficult to see. When I called him to see if something could be done about it, he told me he knew which one I was talking about and he'd take care of it. This was at 11 a.m. I happened to be driving down Maryville Road at 2 p.m. that same day, and the sign had been raised and all distracting signs had been removed!

Granite City is lucky to have such a good street superintendent who listens to and follows through on requests from the citizens.

Thanks for the help
TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to express my most heartfelt thanks to those persons who supported me in my recent candidacy for the Unit 10 School Board. Your words of encouragement, volunteering time for phone calls and putting signs in your yards, as well as taking time to send cards both during and after the election, will be held in grateful remembrance.

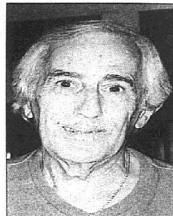

I was extremely and sincerely touched by the number of votes I received and by the obvious display of good will and confidence in my ability to serve as a board member. To those who will now serve as board members, I wish the best of everything. The task ahead of you is monumental and it is my prayer that you will be guided always to serve with discretion, integrity, patience and love for kids — which, ultimately, is the really vital and significant reason for being members of the school board.

To those who felt it necessary to vote against the tax referendum — perhaps many of you will join in assisting with your ideas and concerns.

Balen: GC schools focusing on prevention availability of weapons and instructions on how to use them, and the lack of moral instruction. The mass media increasingly are desensitizing students to violence, he said.

Balen said he recently talked to four middle school students and asked if their parents restricted their access to movies, video games or other entertainment. All said no. In addition to the violence, he said, access to technology such as bomb-making is becoming a severe threat. "Anybody in this room could go to a computer and download pretty good plans to build a nuclear bomb," he said. He also said students had easy access to guns, and materialism created conflicts in the schools.

"Just walk down the halls of our school and see what kids are wearing, or what kinds of cars they're driving," he added.

But probably the most important factor is the "lack of moral, ethical and spiritual teaching," Balen said. While students are free to discuss almost anything, concerns about the separation of church and state make it increasingly difficult for teachers to discuss moral issues.

Balen said in one recent class, a teacher limited a class discussion of a student's report that dealt with a biblical issue. The teacher was concerned about possible legal problems in discussing the report.

The parents sued, claiming it restricted the student's rights, but a court ruled against them. Balen also said too many parents are irresponsible. In one recent case, he said, a parent tried to bargain with the district over a child's expulsion.

Balen said the parent told him "if you don't expel him I will tell you who his drug dealer is, but don't tell him because he's my drug dealer, too."

Balen offered several solutions to the problem of violence. He said schools are considered "soft" or easy targets.

It was not designed with security in mind," he said.

approximately $500,000. Part of the cost could be paid from the sale of the old city hall and fire station on Third Street. The city and Madison County, which recently opened a satellite probation office in the old city hall, are negotiating the sale of both buildings. Hamm plans to pay about 75 percent of the cost using tax increment financing funds.

Although the area is not now in the TIF district, the city is planning to expand the district to include the property, as well as East Madison and industrial property on Rand Avenue. That property includes the Laclede plant, which shut down last year.

Hamm said several industrial developers are very interested in the property.

Longtime County Board member Bob Stille dies

"I couldn't get him away from town for more than five or six days at a time. He was afraid he'd miss some news going on," she said. "He was sure he was going to be at the Madison County Board meeting (on Wednesday). He'd only missed two or three since he joined the board."

Bob Stille, a Democrat, was elected to the County Board in 1984, and fellow board members held a moment of silence when they were informed during Wednesday's meeting that he had died. "It's ironic it happened in the middle of the meeting, and the meeting went on. That's the way Bob would have wanted it," said board member Alan Dunstan, D-Troy.

County Auditor H. Jack Frandsen said Stille was one of the most outstanding leaders in Madison County government.

"He was an honest statesman. The county needs more people like that," Frandsen said.

"He was an excellent County Board member and the type of person who came to (the County Administration Building) every day," said board Chairman Rudy Papa, D-Bethalto.

Stille's funeral has not yet been set, but the visitation is scheduled from 3 to 9 p.m. Friday in Edwardsville.

would be prepared for Jan. 1, 2000.

A Y2K seminar was held Wednesday morning at City Hall at which city employees and residents met with Schultz to discuss Y2K preparations. In other business, the council discussed dumping of yard waste by non-residents of Granite City at the dumping grounds on 25th Street. Second Ward Alderman Craig Tarpoif said it must top.

"We have to do something. We are being abused pretty bad out there," he said.

Tarpoif suggested that a hefty fine be levied upon non-residents who dump grass, leaves or other yard waste at the site.

Police Chief Dave Ruebhausen said he was in favor of such a fine, but cautioned the council that lawn services outside Granite City are contracted by local residents. He said any ordinance should include a stipulation so those companies are not fined.

The council agreed and asked Ruebhausen and the Sanitation and Inspection Committee to draft an ordinance to be discussed by the council at a later date.

on the large copper cooler. Another man on the tower with Pacheco at the time of the accident, co-worker Ronald Sidwell, told police that the men did not tie off their harnesses because they constantly were moving around and would have had to stop to tie the safety harness with every move, Parker said.

Sidwell told police there was no "static line" that would have allowed the men to move back and forth, yet remain safely tethered.

Sidwell was working back-to-back with Pacheco as they moved the coolers along a conveyor, and dropped them to the ground through an opening in a railing.

"He heard a loud noise and turned, and Pacheco was gone," Parker said.

Parker said a standard 42-inch-high hand rail was in place, but a 24-inch mid-rail had been removed so Pacheco could push the coolers through.

Madison County Coroner Dallas Burke read from the autopsy report that the harness Pacheco was wearing had a 70-inch lanyard with safety hooks, but at the hospital those hooks were not attached.

Student sends threatening e-mail

By Dennis Grubaugh
Staff writer

One student faces charges, and other youths are being investigated because of a series of life-threatening computer messages sent to the home of an area high school teacher, police said May 13.

The teacher, who lives but does not work in the Edwardsville School District, had received the e-mail messages for weeks but did not go to police until after the student claimed to be a member of the Trench Coat Mafia. That group was linked to the mass killings in April 20 at a Littleton, Colo., high school.

"It didn't come to our attention until after the Colorado incident," Glen Carbon Police Chief David Bradford said. "(The victim) didn't think there was anything to it until then."

The student's Trench Coat claim didn't start until after publicity surrounding the shootings did, police said. Police would not identify the school district where the teacher is employed, not even to say whether it's in Illinois or Missouri, but they did confirm that the student has been removed from the school.

Police said the student apparently was dissatisfied with the teacher's grading procedure and classroom demeanor. Information developed during the investigation led by Sgt. Mark Foley has indicated that other students may be involved, Bradford said.

The messages were being sent on a regular basis. The character and nature of them led police to believe that the suspect was or had been a student of the victim.

The student's home computer has been seized and is being held by police. Bradford said the student faces charges yet to be filed by the Madison County State's Attorney's Office, pending the outcome of the investigation.

Bradford stressed that the case should be a lesson to anyone who mistakenly thinks that e-mail is a guarantee of anonymity.

"There are sufficiently skilled people in law enforcement" to find them.

Runaway found, returned home

By Sanford J. Schmidt
Staff writer

A runaway missing since March 12 has been found and returned to her Edwardsville home.

Candice Sharp, 16, was found in an apartment in Corning, Ark., with her boyfriend, Timothy Howell, 22, of Granite City.

A resident of the Corning area spotted the missing girl and called police in that community, according to the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

Notices about the missing girl went out over national police networks and over the Internet, Madison County Sheriff's Department Detective Rosalie Huebener said.

Sharp's father had posted fliers around Edwardsville in attempts to locate her. Sharp was transported back to Edwardsville, Huebener said.

She was seen March 12 getting into Howell's van. She lives with her father and stepmother, Robert and Julie Sharp, in Edwardsville.

Sharp's mother, Trina Pace, lives in Eureka, Mo.

Howell was wanted on a Madison County warrant charging probation violation, but Arkansas was not able to extradite him, so he was not arrested in Corning.

Area Baptist youths take part in state Bible Drill competition

Grace Baptist Church youth competed Saturday in the state Bible Drill and Speaker's Tournament in Chatham.

Jessica Clatts, a sophomore at Central Baptist School, took first place with her speech, "Words Can Destroy," about how gossip can destroy a person's life. This was Jessica's first year to compete. Leah Gambin took second place with her speech, "Forgiveness is a Virtue."

Leah is a senior at Granite City High School and this was her third year in the speaker's tournament.

Janelle Hanks placed third with her speech, "What is a True Friend?" Janelle also is a senior at Granite City High School and attended the tournament for the third year.

Students receive scholarship money as their award from the Illinois Baptist State Association, which sponsors this event.

Kinsey Kell and Kristen Randall competed in the Youth Bible Drills and both were state winners. Kinsey received the third-highest overall score. These youth are very dedicated and work very hard preparing for the state Bible drills and speaker's tournaments.

Marvin and Lisa Stapleton are the youth directors at Grace Baptist Church and work diligently with these youth, preparing them for the Bible drills and speaker's tournaments.

More than 500 bikers got their motors running Sunday in the Fourth Annual Cindy Haegge Memorial Benefit Ride to raise money for cancer research.

More than $16,000 was raised in memory of former cancer patient Cindy Haegge, who died from breast cancer in 1997. "It was a great turnout with a lot of enthusiasm," said Ann Knief of Belleville. "It's a way to have a good time while contributing to a great cause."

Knief said the number of riders was up from 375 last year.

"The Belleville Harley group does a lot of work for the community and this is just another example of that," she said.

The annual ride was launched by Dr. Guillermo Rodriguez, an oncologist from Belleville.

Rodriguez said in 1996, the event's first year, Haegge and her husband, Bruce, set out with 40 others in a maiden voyage under miserable weather conditions.

"That first year it poured on us," Rodriguez recalled. "But those of us who were there toughed it out. It was quite an experience."

Bikers embarked on an approximate 90-mile countryside route through Southern Illinois.

The first year $7,000 was raised for the American Cancer Society.

In subsequent rides, consistently better weather has improved ridership as well as money raised. In 1997, $10,000 was raised and last year $12,000 was donated to the ACS.

"The proceeds from the ride are 100 percent donated to the ACS," Rodriguez said.

"Everything that is done is donated, the flyers, raffle tickets, ad books, trophies, food and the band."

Maxine Green

Lyndsay Fuller, a second-grader who attends Pontoon Baptist Church, and Patricia Smith, a third-grader who attends Suburban Baptist Church, competed in the Illinois State Bible Drill Tournament at First Baptist Church in Waterloo Saturday. This was their first time in the competition and they both won a first-place award.

The Salvation Army Social Hall was the scene of an old-fashioned western roundup, with Capt. Martin Colip manning a grill of hot dogs and hamburgers for all. The Day Home League Ladies and the Night Home League Ladies had their annual get-together.

Maj. and Mrs. Dan Hudson were on the entertainment committee for the evening. Each one of the ladies took a covered dish. Rose Smith led the prayer for the food blessing. Mrs. Hudson showed part of a movie, "It's a Bug's Life." Harriet Colip made the announcements and told the ladies the Granite City Corps Home League ranked ninth in the area.

Mrs. Hudson led the group in singing old-time songs. Maj. Hudson presented a skit called "The Bus" that they all enjoyed. All agreed it was a good time.

At the next meeting, Harriet Colip will be speaking on the topic "Face To Face."

The Madison County Baptist Association Executive Board met April 19 at Suburban Baptist Church, with 37 people representing 12 of its 21 churches and two missions. Music was led by Steve Stanford accompanied by Brenda Hayes and Judy Barnes.

Suburban Baptist pastor Ron Zamkus presented a devotional from Joshua. Beverly Donnell sang "Nothing Compares to the Promise I Have in You."

ihland Southern Baptist Church was also accepted back into the Madison County Association.

The next meeting will be hosted by Second Baptist Church Aug. 16.

The Avenue of Flags, a flag display, will take place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 31 in Sunset Hill Memorial Estates in Edwardsville.

Warriors fail to Althoff

Kloess limits Granite City to three hits in 6-0 decision

By Rick Broome

The Crusaders rampaged in their last at-bat Tuesday afternoon, making a close

PREP SOFTBALL

Belleville Althoff scored one run in the fourth and five in the seventh to defeat Granite City 6-0 at Wilson Park. The Crusaders scored their first run — and the only — when they needed — in the top of the fourth when Emily Scannell singled against Warriors pitcher Staci Foster and — two outs later — scored on Lauren Scannell's triple. Althoff scored five more in a sloppy seventh. Lauren Scannell and Lisa Padgett hit back-to-back singles, and Scannell scored on a bunt single by Katie Kloess. Suzanne Gundlach reached on an error that allowed Padgett to score. Kloess scored on yet another error, and the extra outs afforded Althoff centerfielder Katie Cerneka an opportunity to drive a two-run single that scored Gundlach and Emily Scannell.

Warriors senior captain Robyn Slater said Foster deserved a better fate. "She has been throwing really well," Slater said.

"She doesn't have quite the velocity (Jessica) Stratman, our other starter, does. But she hits her spots really well and she has been working hard. And she's young, she'll come along with the future and be quite a good pitcher. She kept us in the game and held them to one for six innings, and that one was on a good play."

Granite City coach Deb Germann agreed.

Lancers capture league crown

Belleville East tops Tigers 7-4

By Greg Shashack

New signs adorned the outfield wall at the Edwardsville High Sports Complex, trumpeting the Tigers' 40-0 record last season and the program's 49-game winning streak.

Those latest additions joined metal placards honoring Edwardsville's two Class AA state championships and a state-record 64-game winning streak. And they provided the backdrop for Belleville East's Tuesday afternoon celebration of a Southwestern Conference baseball title.

Andy Schutzenhofer's bases-loaded double with two outs in the eighth inning drove in three runs and gave the Lancers a 7-4 victory against the Tigers in a battle of the Metro East's top two teams.

"Southwestern Conference champs, senior year, that's one of the biggest achievements we can have," said Schutzenhofer, who was 4 for 4 and also picked up the victory with 1½ innings of perfect relief. "It feels real good to come out and play a great team like Edwardsville, with all their tradition, and beat them."

Belleville East improved to 26-3 and clinched the SWC championship with an 11-1 record in the conference. Edwardsville, which could have clinched at least a share of the SWC title with a victory, fell to 24-5 and 9-2 in the league.

"We've shown that we've been able to bounce back," said Edwardsville coach Tim Funkhouser, whose

Granite City finishes fifth in SWC meet

Warriors avenge regular-season loss to Collinsville

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

There are rivalries and then there is Granite City and Collinsville.

BOYS TENNIS

The feud was renewed last Friday and Saturday in the Southwestern Conference Tennis Tournament at Belleville East.

The Warriors set their sights on the purple people across the nets and swung.

"We were trying to be realistic going into this thing," Granite City coach Allen Lobdell said. "Our big hope was to avenge our dual-meet loss to Collinsville by placing ahead of them in the tournament. Our hope of pulling ahead of Alton, Edwardsville and Belleville East or West was pretty slim, so we decided that that was going to be our goal. At every opportunity, we were going to try to beat Collinsville and move ahead of them. As it turned out, we were extremely successful."

Granite City finished fifth, one spot ahead of Collinsville. Alton won the event with 50 points, followed by Belleville East (49), Belleville West (48) and Edwardsville (47).

Doubles play kicked off the tournament Friday night. Granite City lost its first-round matches to higher-seeded teams but ended up meeting — and beating — Collinsville pairings in the losers bracket.

"We basically had the No. 5 seed out of seven teams at No. 1 (Andy Balcer and Tim Knowlton) and No. 3 doubles (Matt Dittman and Matt Davis)," Lobdell said. "At No. 2 doubles (Jarod McMillan and Jason Woodson), we had the No. 6 seed, which means that we lost to everybody in the conference (during the regular season) at No. 2 doubles except for East St. Louis."

"That No. 2 team defeated the team that they had lost to (from Collinsville) in the dual meet. So this new team of McMillan and Woodson avenged that loss. It's too bad that we couldn't do it in the dual, but at least we did it here."

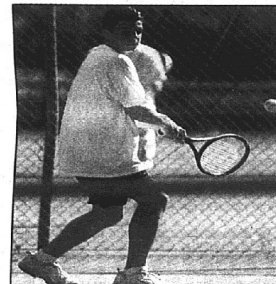

"We lost our first-round match in all three doubles matches to various opponents, but they were always among those first four elite teams in the conference. Basically, in all three of the doubles matches, we ended up playing Collinsville and we beat them in all three. It earned us fifth-place points and then sixth-place points in those three."

"The next day in the singles we had to do the same thing, knowing that their No. 2 player, Brian Motzel, was the No. 2 seed at No. 2 singles, and so (he) was expected to go quite far in the main draw. If we didn't win the first round, we wouldn't have a chance to meet Collinsville in that matchup, so we had to do a little bit better in all the others."

At No. 1 singles, Granite City's Andy Balcer — the No. 5 seed — defeated fourth-seeded Dusty Foy of Belleville East in three sets.

"That was a big win for us, both in the conference tournament and for seeding purposes this coming weekend in the sectionals," Lobdell said. "That was a great win. The problem was that Ismahan Mohsen graduated from Granite City High School in 1998 after a stellar high school career and earned a scholarship to Saint Louis University.

Though Ismahah helped familiarize the territory, Felicia Mohsen has forged her own path.

"I think basically I knew what I was getting into before I actually had to experience it myself," Mohsen said. "I knew all the hard work that I was going to have to put into it, because I saw the way that she worked and it kind of let me know what I was in for."

"I have felt some of the pressure to live up to what she did, but I'm happy with what I have done as a player. People compare us all the time. I really don't know how I would compare myself to her, but I'm happy with the way I have played."

Granite City coach Gene Baker saw both players up close.

"The big thing is that Felicia is so much taller (than Ismahah), Baker said. "She plays more defense. Ismahah has more speed, but skill-wise they are very similar. And the mentalities are very similar in respect to their place within the team. They are somewhat free spirits, and they try to make that work in their own way."

Felicia is also going to go to Saint Louis University, she has a substantial scholarship there. I'm hoping that she finishes right as a high school student-athlete, which I think she can."

Felicia Mohsen has missed a lot of time the past two seasons with a knee injury. She had to ride pine her entire junior year, and the specter of the injury, though exorcised, raised its head again at the beginning of this season.

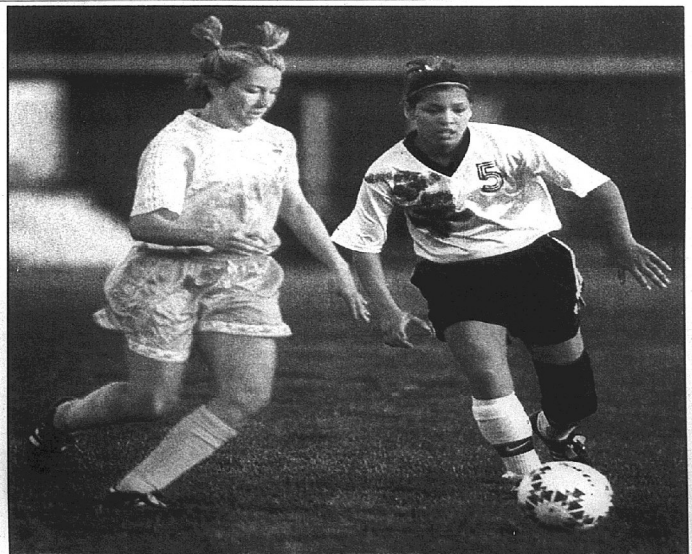

"It had been a while since I had the surgery," Mohsen said. "But one of the screws was coming out of my knee and it was aggravating the whole knee area. So I had to wait for that to be taken out, but it was taken out, and it's fine now."

"Not playing last year and then coming back and having the whole knee problem again was frustrating. It really slowed me down. I felt I had to prove myself all over again. I tried to stay in shape the whole time I was off. I worked out by myself so it wouldn't be as hard when I came back."

The down time for Mohsen and the Warriors was compounded this year by injuries and a series of off-the-field incidents that left several members of the team suspended at various times.

"I think the team has been through a lot this year, more than we should have," Mohsen said. "We shouldn't have gone through any of this. We brought it all on ourselves. I think if none of this stuff would have happened, we could be at a much higher level than we are right now."

Granite City finishes fifth in conference tournament

Andy had an Achilles tendon that started to bother him late in the match and continued to worsen in the second match against Alton's Doug DeLuc. So he withdrew from that match and ended up finishing fourth. Had he lost, he would have had a chance to play for third. But rather than risk any injury for the sectional, we kind of pulled him out of that. So at No. 1, we did as well as we could have hoped, considering the fact that previously in the Belleville East Tournament, Andy lost to Foy 6-1, 6-1, in straight sets. So it was a great win for him."

Jason Woodson suffered an initial loss for the Warriors in the first round at No. 2, but won a consolation game against East St. Louis and then got eliminated to finish in sixth.

Granite City's Tim Knowlton also lost in the first round at No. 3, but then defeated Collinsville's Titus Moore 6-3, 6-2 in the consolation bracket.
"It was another time where we kind of avenged another loss in the dual meet," Lobdell said. "Timmy lost in three sets to this guy in the dual meet, and then came back with a win in the conference tournament. So we gained another point over them there."
At No. 4, Granite City's Eric Wright lost in the first round, but in his match against Collinsville, Jason Lukowski defaulted, giving the Warriors another point advantage.
Granite City's Harry Painter lost in straight sets in both matches at No. 5 to finish in sixth place.

At No. 6 singles, the Warriors' Jared McMillian dropped his first-round match but defeated Collinsville's Ryan Schneider in three sets in the consolation bracket.
"It was a pretty good weekend for us," Lobdell said. "We gained some experience and accomplished the goal we had set out with. We weren't totally disappointed. We are not really happy being the fifth-place team in a seven-team conference, but we are improving. I think we understand things and we will be much better next year. This will definitely help lead us into the sectional."

The sectional tournament starts Friday at Belleville East.
"If we can put together

some decent doubles teams and if Andy's tendon responds to some treatment, we'll be OK; we'll be in good shape," Lobdell said. "Our freshmen responded well at No. 3 doubles. They beat the Collinsville team. I'm really happy that they got more experience and that the team of McMillian and Woodson seem to be playing fairly well. And then Andy got that big win. It was all we could have hoped for."

Mohsen ready to help Warriors put together postseason quest

"But we are getting through it, and we are going to work through it and do our best, that's all we can do. We have really gotten a lot tighter as a team, we have become real close. If everyone gives everything they have, we can get through it."

Mohsen was named a co-captain before the season, and her resilience in fighting adversity has been a boon, especially as the Warriors head toward the postseason.

"Leadership is a big thing," Mohsen said. "If I can get everyone who is on the field and on the bench to give everything they have, if everyone goes out there and plays and just really wants to win, then we can go out there and do it. We have the potential, we have the skill, we have really good players. We just have to want to win."

"The big thing is that we look for her to take us there now," Baker said. "She has experience, she has ability, and she is just another very important facet of what we need to win. She is going to fill the bill for us. I hope. If she has her act together, look out, because she can play some defense in an important role for us, and yet she is capable of scoring. So we need to max out on what we need to get out of Felicia in terms of talent. If she is a tournament player, then we could be a tournament team. She is an intelligent young lady. Her high school career certainly has not been without problems, like the knee surgery and taking the screw out of it that was going through the leg and all these things."

"What I am looking for is that she play a strong defensive role and get use opportune moments to come forward and score, on restarts and during the flow of play. Right now she is in the best condition, certainly, that she has been in in the past two years. We need a little bit of luck to keep her healthy and see what she can do now."

Warriors offensive woes continue with loss to Athoff

"She pitched well even in the seventh, and we just made too many errors," Germann said. "We should have been out of there — there's no way we should have allowed five runs. They should have gotten one, but that's it. We are making stupid plays that don't make sense. "We go six innings, making mistakes, but getting out of the situations. It was 1-0. They earned that one run, that's fine. I have no problem with that. But then to turn around and make two or three errors in the top of the seventh inning and give up five runs, that's ridiculous." Athoff starter Katie Kloess pitched a complete game three-hitter and struck out 11 batters. "She struggled a little bit with her control," Athoff coach Mary Kloess said of her daughter. "She was trying to be a little bit fine, I think, trying to hit the corners. Then she settled down a little bit better after that and did well. It did look like she picked up the speed on her pitches. At the beginning, she looked real stale. We haven't played for a while — we had one game in the last six or seven days — and I think that just makes a difference. Nobody is real sharp, the hitters aren't sharp, the pitching isn't real sharp. I think it just took a little while to kind of get into the groove. But it seemed like she was throwing a bit harder at the end."

Despite constant attention, Granite City's batting has not come alive. "We have been working a lot with hitting," Slater said. "I'm having a hard time seeing the ball. I don't know if that's everybody else's problem. We have been hitting in the cages a lot lately. Coach has been doing everything to help us. It will be there, it will come soon. We are working hard at it."

With Kloess on the mound, Athoff (22-3) is as formidable as any team in the Metro East.

"Athoff is up there with O'Fallon and Belleville West; they are a good team."

Germann said. "But we are swinging at stuff above our heads. I have them in the cages during their off hours and I'm getting them to swing, but they are just not selecting the pitch and staying in their zone. They are swinging at anything."

"We talked to a couple of them about what they are thinking about or what they are looking at, and they can't even answer. They are just swinging at nothing. The Warriors, 7-11 this season, faced Waterloo on Wednesday. They will host Alton in a Southwestern Conference game Thursday and host O'Fallon on Friday. Then they play at Alton on Monday.

"We are 5-5 in conference," Germann said. "It would be nice to win those two games (against Alton) and be 7-5."

Lancers win SWC crown

team was to play Highland on Wednesday before closing the SWC schedule this afternoon at Belleville West. "I know our guys are going to take this hard. But after a couple hours, they'll be thinking about tomorrow and being ready to play. A game like this definitely helps you down the line. You can't beat a conference run going into the postseason."

The loss was the Tigers' first regular-season defeat after having since Belleville East beat Edwardsville two years ago to the day — May 18, 1997 — to secure the SWC crown.

The Lancers, who were spanked 13-3 when they last visited the Complex in last year's sectional, struck quickly Tuesday. Edwardsville starter Nick Seibert, whose lone blemish on a 3-1 record came in a loss at East, was roughed up for three runs in the first inning. But the Tigers recovered immediately against Lancers ace Dante Brinkley, getting hits from Todd Spitz and Andrew Honegger and a walk to Seibert to set up Tim Hansel's two-RBI single and Matt Turner's sacrifice fly RBI.

That outburst tied the game at 3-3 after one inning. "Both teams were tense at the beginning, very nervous," East coach Dennis Seibert said. "A lot was riding on the game — Nos. 1 and 2 teams in the area — and once it settled down it was great baseball."

Both Seibert and Brinkley recovered to keep the opposition scoreless until the sixth inning, when East took a 4-3 lead on two hit batsmen, a single and a fielder's choice RBI.

But again, the Tigers answered with a run in the bottom of the inning, when pinch-runner Joe Havis scored from second base on Beau Moody's infield single and throwing error by second baseman Brad Bone.

Brinkley worked six innings, giving nine hits, four walks and striking out seven. Seibert went six innings, allowing four hits, two walks and striking out nine. The senior right-hander also hit five batters, two of whom would eventually score.

Both teams threatened in the seventh. After striking out Brinkley to open the inning, Seibert — whose pitch count was approaching 100 — left the game with a 2-1 count on the left-handed hitting Schutzenhofer in favor of lefty Chris Johnson. And after Schutzenhofer promptly singled, Johnson escaped the jam by fanning cleanup hitter Louis Beatty, walking Bone and striking out Bart Bennett.

In the bottom of the seventh, singles from Honegger and Seibert, who re-entered the game as DH, put runners on first and second with two outs to bring Hansel — who leads the SWC with 44 RBI — to the plate. But Andy Schutzenhofer, a left-handed thrower, relieved Brinkley and struck out Hansel to end the threat.

With Johnson, who left the game when Seibert re-entered, done for the day, the Tigers turned to freshman Danny Jackson. But the right-hander, hurt by a single and consecutive walks before retiring Brinkley, surrendered Schutzenhofer's game-winning shot.

"I just wanted to come through," Schutzenhofer said.

Let's go fishin' for sales managers

It's that time of year. Unless you're an Eskimo or live in the northern states and find ice fishing attractive, you are probably beginning to think about the upcoming fishing season.

As sales managers, we should be thinking about fishing as well. No, not for trout or large mouth bass at the lake, but for good sales people. How often have you been surprised by one of your sales people saying: "Oh, by the way, I have accepted a position at company XYZ. I'm starting in two weeks." Now you have to find a qualified sales person in less than two weeks so you can train and get him or her up to speed as soon as possible. Hopefully, before the other sales person leaves.

Fat chance of that happening. Smile, it could be worse. You could be like some sales managers that have a "slack" or two in their midst contaminating the whole sales team. Unfortunately you can't fire them because you can't find anyone better. So you just don't want to go through the painful process of hiring.

Fishing for good sales people is usually not as much fun as fishing for rainbow or bass late in the afternoon. It's more like fishing for food to keep you alive. When fishing becomes that serious and necessary, it's no longer any fun.

Hiring sales people is sort of the same. When you have to find a good sales representative in order to keep your business alive, it does take the fun out of the whole hiring process.

Plan and Strategize. Okay, so you want to schedule a nice relaxing weekend fishing, what are the steps you take?

- Schedule the time for the activity
- Locate the area in which you are most likely to get positive results. (Ask yourself where are the kind of fish you are looking for most likely to be?)
- Decide on how you are going to attract what you are looking for. Choose the right bait.
- Decide what means you will use to get that bait in front of the right fish.
- Learn from the pros techniques required to catch as many as you attract.

When you find people who would make good sales people for your company, put them in a "people bank" for future contact. Then you can take them to the next hiring step when timing is right for you.

Y2K and your VCR—How bad will it be?

By Robert E. Calem

You're probably already worried that the advent of Y2K will wreak havoc on your computer, but have you considered the impact it will have on your VCR and camcorder? Depending on the model you own, there may be trouble when the ball drops in Times Square on January 1, 2000.

Why? Because VCRs and camcorders rely on "embedded microprocessors" that are pre-programmed to recognize dates. Manufacturers and other experts say that when 2000 rolls around, microprocessors in older machines may malfunction.

Don't panic

Before you panic, however, be aware that these malfunctions won't interfere with the basic operation of the machines and that, according to industry experts, the number of affected models will be minimal. Most camcorders not Y2K-compliant will display an incorrect date. You may not be able to program a non-compliant VCR to record a show at a later date. Otherwise, both devices will continue to record and play back videotapes as usual.

"Your camcorder itself should not stop working. Just some of the features will be curtailed," said Lisa Fasold, a spokesperson for the Consumer Electronics Manufacturers Association (CEMA) in Arlington, Va. CEMA surveyed its members (companies such as Sony and Sharp) early last year and asked which products would be affected. Fasold said that Y2K-readiness problems were found with VCRs sold between 1976 and 1979, as well as with a few models from the 1980s.

However, Fasold noted that fewer than one million VCRs were sold in the 1970s, compared to 73 million in the 1980s and 121 million so far this decade. CEMA started keeping sales records for camcorders in 1985. During the period from 1985 through 1989, only 7.6 million camcorders were sold, compared to fewer than 30 million so far this decade.

Fasold suggested that consumers contact manufacturers to ask about the particular models they own.

What manufacturers say and Canada, 51 in Europe, 50 in Mexico and Central America and the Pacific Rim countries.

Among the products cleared in the United States during the year were three dosage strengths of Mallinckrodt's Methylphenidate, the chemical active in Ritalin. Methylphenidate is used in the treatment of attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). Other significant product clearances included the 840 Ventilator System, the next generation top-of-the-line critical care ventilator for infant, pediatric and adult patients; the Simplicity Spirometer that measures lung capacity and performance; the KnightStar 335 respiratory support system for hospitals and institutions; and the Goodbed Knight 418 home care system for treating obstructive sleep apnea.

and the benefits of its direct-to-patient targeting capabilities."

The Health Resource Network includes information about a customer's prescription, health articles related to the medication or condition being treated, and product advertising or promotional messages.

Sharp's site also allows consumers to research the Y2K-readiness of its products. Sony's site merely offers a blanket promise that all of the company's brand-name consumer products are Y2K-ready, with the exception of its CCD-F30 camera and some VCR remote controls sold in Europe and Japan. Thomson Consumer Electronics' RCA site takes no stand on any specific products and optimistically predicts that all of its products will be fine.

Call to company officials yielded similar results. Kurt Praschak, a spokesperson for Panasonic, conceded that a few camcorder models manufactured in 1987 are not Y2K-compliant. But he promised that all Panasonic and Quasar VCRs are ready for the next millennium.

Nancy Levene, a spokesperson for Sharp, said the company found no problems with VCRs made since 1983 nor with camcorders made since 1990. Older products were not tested, Levene said. To be realistic, though, most of these items are probably resting in an attic somewhere or sleeping soundly in the local landfill.

Representatives from Philips (who referred us to a lawyer in Eindhoven in the Netherlands), Sony and Thomson would not comment to town.com regarding the Y2K-readiness of their VCRs and camcorders.

So what can you do to fix a VCR or camcorder that is not Y2K-compliant? Nothing, the experts said. What's more, it's unlikely that the manufacturer will take the device back in order to retrofit it with a corrected embedded microprocessor. That would be economically unfeasible to them and their customers. "It would probably be more cost-effective to replace it," Sharp's Levene said.

It makes sense. After all, new Y2K-compliant equipment is bound to be less costly than gear sold in previous years—that's one aspect of consumer electronics that has withstood the test of time.

Mallinckrodt receives 200 product clearances

Mallinckrodt, Inc. continued its expansion into the global marketplace in 1998 by receiving more than 200 regulatory clearances for its products in the United States and more than 40 other countries.

Some of the products were new to the practice of medicine; others were newly introduced to the markets in which they were cleared. Of the clearances, more than 40 came in the United States

ILLINOIS STATE POLICE FORENSIC SCIENCE LAB TAKES A BITE OUT OF CRIME

Every
fingerprint
tells a story

Right, Peck shows the results of a typical fingerprinting. Technicians in this area use a computer system called the Automated Fingerprint Identification System containing more than 2.5 million scanned fingerprint cards and in excess of 6,500 unidentified latent prints in its database.

Imagine waking up in the county jail charged with a crime you did not commit.

You are innocent, but every bit of evidence, even witness identification, has convinced the police otherwise. The one piece of evidence that can exonerate you is a DNA analysis.

Mike Brown, DNA Analyst at the Illinois State Police Metro East Forensic Science Lab, said many criminals were falsely incarcerated before DNA technology existed.

"In Illinois alone, 11 death row inmates have been exonerated since the technology became available," Brown said.

Technological advances such as those at the crime lab on Bunkum Road in Fairview Heights have helped put away criminals like the South Side Rapist and Paula Sims, who was convicted in 1990 of killing her infant daughter.

The lab, one of eight in Illinois, consists of a team of forensic scientists who work to both exonerate and implicate criminals in an eight-county area.

David Peck, assistant laboratory director, said the 30 employees at the Metro East lab handle between 3,500 and 4,000 cases each year.

The lab is divided into specialized areas, including polygraph, fingerprint analysis, drug chemistry analysis, trace chemistry or arson analysis, DNA forensic biology and fire arms, tool identification, footwear and tire track identification.

Peck said the technicians specialize in each area to keep up with the changing times. He said technicians must participate in on-going training.

"Technology is progressing so fast, we can hardly keep up," he said.

Peck said the process begins when a law enforcement agency brings in evidence and an analyst signs it over. The materials are held under tight scrutiny and every person involved with the evidence must sign for it, which is referred to as the chain of custody.

"Preserving the chain of custody is essential to ensure that materials, often pivotal to the outcome of prosecution, are legally and properly handled," Peck said.

If the chain of custody is properly followed, the system becomes almost error proof.

"In any field of human endeavor you're going to make a mistake, but we work diligently to make sure errors don't occur," Peck said.

In the polygraph room, after the suspect is hooked up to a few unobtrusive attachments from the polygraph instrument, an examiner can ask questions and record responses in the subject's blood pressure, respiration and galvanic skin reaction.

"A technician can get a response back to the arresting officer within an hour or two," Peck said.

Polygraph, like other areas, is now computerized and can be shared with other labs.

Criminals commonly leave impressions, for example, by the patterns of their fingers, palms, feet, shoes, lips or the tread of the tires on their vehicles. Such impressions are often latent, or not visible to the naked eye.

Laser photography and luminescing latent imaging makes these prints visible, as proteins exuded in sweat glow in the dark.

Fingerprints are a positive means of identification when known samples are available and Illinois has millions of known fingerprint cards on file. Technicians in this area use a computer system called the Automated Fingerprint chemists deal with evidence from arsons, explosions, accidents and all types of non-drug related cases, such as analyzing fire debris for the presence of flammable liquids, which might indicate arson.

One of the largest areas in the forensic lab is the biology section, where scientists use deoxyribonucleic acid or DNA analysis methods to link someone to a crime scene. Using a

Combined DNA Index System

(CODIS) computer, the lab technicians can compare DNA profiles from body fluid evidence with profiles from convicted offenders or other forensic cases.

Brown said it was this technology that linked the South Side Rapist to several crimes. He added that there are 15,000 known sex offenders profiled in "Technology is progressing so fast, we can hardly keep up."

DNA analysis helps convict - or exonerate - thousands of suspects nationwide each year.

Identification System (AFIS) which contains more than 2.5 million scanned fingerprint cards and in excess of 6,500 unidentified latent prints in its database.

Identifying a suspect using AFIS can occur in minutes rather than hours," Peck said.

Peck added that it is important to remember that no two fingerprints are alike.

Even identical twins don't have the same fingerprints."

Technicians working in the drug trace and chemistry section determine if evidence contains controlled substances. To determine the type of substance present, forensic chemists use techniques such as color tests, thin-layer chromatography, gas chromatography, infrared and ultraviolet spectrophotometry and mass spectrometry to separate and identify the parts of the evidence.

In trace chemistry, the forensic scientists identify and compare materials based upon their chemical composition and associate properties. Trace the computer.

"Even if the victim has no idea who attacked them, I can still search a profile for them," he said. "The computer will eliminate 14,999 possibilities and only match one person."

Although identical twins have different finger prints, DNA is a different story, as Brown said DNA is exactly the same in identical twins.

In 1993, Brown testified in the case of a suspect accused of killing a young boy in Greenville.

"The suspect had tried cleaning up, but missed a drop of blood the size of a pin head on his shoe. I tied him to the crime with his DNA."

In the firearms and tools section, scientists microscopically examine evidence to determine if a specific fired bullet, discharged cartridge or firearm can be related to a particular crime. In addition, toolmarks are examined to determine if a relationship exists between a particular tool (pry bar, screwdriver, etc.) and the crime scene where the tool mark was found.

Tent Event
this weekend at Borders20,000 book, music titles will be on sale

Borders Books and Music in Fairview Heights will hold its first Tent Event Friday through Sunday.

More than 20,000 bargain book and music titles will be on sale in a parking lot tent during regular store hours, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

Titles will be priced at 50 percent to 90 percent off publisher list prices. Quantities of each title will be limited so customers are encouraged to shop early. Refreshments will be available for sale.

Borders, located opposite St. Clair Square on Ill. 159, invites nonprofit groups looking to raise money to sell food and beverages at the tent sale. To arrange for your group to sell food items call Borders' community relations coordinator at 397-6152 as soon as possible. Food sale slots are filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Borders has packed the weekend full of entertainment inside the store. Community outreach events also are scheduled. Representatives from the Animal Relief and Rescue Foundation will sell dog and cat tags and raffie off other items as part of a fund-raising effort Friday and Saturday afternoons.

Representatives from Midwest Community Outreach will be on hand from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday to provide stress relief advice and information as well as free blood pressure screenings.

Customers can enter a contest to win "Star Wars" merchandise.

The following events are scheduled for this weekend:

Friday
7 p.m. — "Improving Communication Workshop for Couples" led by Greg Yank of Mars/Venus workshops. Yank will highlight communication tips from John Grey's popular book, "Women Are From Mars, Men Are From Venus." The workshop is open to all couples, whether just dating or married. Registration is required; call 397-6097.

7 to 10 p.m. — Terri Langerak plays harp solos in the cafe.

Old bridge will offer bicyclists new option

Chain of Rocks Bridge will reopen permanently on weekends on June 5

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

From the soon-to-be-opened Chain of Rocks Bridge to the Tour de Donut, local biking enthusiasts will have a lot to keep them busy this summer.

With warmer weather, the bicyclists can't be far behind, and although the Madison-St. Clair county area doesn't have a lot of dedicated bicycle trails yet, there are still a number of good places to ride.

Receiving the most attention will be the Old Chain of Rocks Bridge.

Once part of Route 66, the bridge will reopen to the public June 5.

Being revamped by Trailnet Inc. as the longest pedestrian/bicycle bridge in the world, it will initially be open during daylight hours on weekends.

The bridge's grand opening will be the annual Earth Day festivities, which have been moved to the bridge this year.

Other major trails in Madison County are the Vadalabene Trail from the Esic Subdivision in Edwardsville to Lake Drive in Pontoon Beach near Horseshoe Lake State Park, the Delyte Morris Trail at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville, The Ron Foster Trail in Glen Carbon and the "other" Vadalabene Trail from Alton to Pere Marquette State Park.

The most spectacular is undoubtedly the trail from Alton through Grafton, with the Mississippi River and the bluffs stretching almost 20 miles of trails, both on and off the highway.

But the smaller trails can offer a great deal also.

The Vadalabene Trail, operated by the Madison County Transit District, runs through heavily wooded areas on the SIUE campus through farmland and wetlands along the American Bottoms, before ending near Horseshoe Lake State Park.

In St. Clair County, the Richland Creek Greenway runs about one mile parallel to Richland Creek near downtown Belleville.

"It's part of a bigger project being designed now," said Mike Fries, Trailnet's director of engineering.

While bicyclists this summer won't be able to take advantage of them, an extensive series of trails in Madison and St. Clair counties is now being designed or built. That includes the MetroBikeLink along the St. Clair County portion of MetroLink, the Confluence Trail from Alton to Granite City — connecting to the Chain of Rocks Bridge and eventually to the Eads Bridge in East St. Louis — and the Schoolhouse Trail from Granite City to Troy and Edwardsville to Poag Road.

However, at this time trails are limited, and most people still stick to the roads.

For those interested in cycling longer distances, that

Take care when buying a new bike

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

With summer biking season here, many people will consider purchasing a new bicycle.

Dawn Webber, manager of The Touring Cyclist in Fairview Heights, said that is not as simple as coming in and picking a bike up off the rack any more. Factors such as height and size of the rider, as well as the style of riding and budget, are important.

Bicycles should be fitted to individual riders, she said.

Webber said the most popular style of bicycle right now is the mountain bike with its fat tires and upright handlebars.

"A lot of the people like the fat-tire bikes," she said. "Fat tire gives you a softer, cushier ride."

However, she said people need to understand that real "mountain bikes" are expensive.

While all bicycles using fat 26-inch tires are called mountain bikes, the most popular are actually not built for rugged use.

"Unfortunately, until you get up to a $400 or greater price point, it's not really made for off-road 'rough' or mountains," she said.

As the bicycles get more expensive, she said, the frames get lighter, the gearing is smoother, and bikes can take more abuse.

"If you're still buying at the $200-$300 price range, they are very similar to the hybrid, in that they are more for city or light trail," she said.

At the other end of the spectrum are touring bicycles with their thin tires and low handlebars. Hybrids combine aspects of both mountain and touring bikes.

usually means local country roads.

"Most of the people who ride long distances use the rural route roads that still go between cities," said Dawn Webber, manager of The Touring Cyclist in Fairview Heights.

Regionally, the Gateway Council Hostelling International sponsors a number of rides, including the annual Moonlight Ramble through downtown St. Louis.

For information on their activities, call 314-644-4660.

One of the most unusual bicycling activities is the annual Tour de Donut.

On 9 a.m. July 17, bikers will gather at Staunton High School for the 30-mile race, patterned after the annual Tour de France.

However, during the race, riders will make two donut stops, where they eat as many donuts as possible within 10 minutes. For each donut consumed, their overall road time is reduced five minutes.

For information call Greg at 314-940-8985, Ed at 314-741-2221, Bob at 314-921-1007 or Joe at 254-1486.

Advertising campaigns evolving Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

It's interesting how businesses try to adapt their advertising campaigns to expand their markets.

For instance, I remember when Mountain Dew soda first came out 30 years or so ago and they used hillbilly cartoon characters on their television commercials.

At some point since then, a decision was made to target young people and, for at least the last several years, they have run ads showing Generation X kids snowboarding and doing other dangerous activities.

I guess not enough hillbillies had been buying the product.

Miller Lite beer also has gone through changes in its marketing.

During the 1970s, the company's "Tastes great, less filling" ads with retired athletes were funnier than many sitcoms. Bob Uecker, Bubba Smith, Dick Butkus and Billy Martin were in a number of memorable spots.

After going away from that campaign, Miller Lite has come back with new ads featuring ex-jocks Lee Smith and Mitch Williams playing darts and George Brett and Robin Yount discussing their Hall of Fame votes. Both commercials make me laugh.

As I watch a great deal of sports on TV, I am inundated with ads for various products obviously targeted for guys. During a typical baseball or football game, I will see approximately 100 commercials each for beer, tires, insurance, motor oil, cars and trucks. No matter what kind of programming you watch, you will see oodles of ads for computers and fast food.

Something puzzling to me has been the increase over the last decade of states promoting themselves. Everybody knows that Florida is a vacation spot, but I now have seen commercials extolling the virtues of vacationing in Oklahoma, Texas, Iowa, Arkansas, Minnesota, Missouri and Illinois.

The ads have done little to influence me, though I do remember them.

For this week's trivia quiz, the topic is advertising slogans.

1. Which business sells its product under the slogan, "A different kind of car?"

2. Which restaurant chain has used the line "Makin' it great?"

3. Which cigarette company says in its print ads, "Come to where the flavor is?"

4. "The great American shoe store" has been what company's slogan?

5. "The most treasured name in perfume" is from what company?

6. Which public service organization has promoted itself with "We're fighting for your life?"

7. What soap product has been sold with "Keep that schoolgirl complexion?"

8. What televisions have been sold with the line "The quality goes in before the name goes on?"

9. "Because so much is riding on your tires" is from which company?

10. What company has said it produces "America's most famous dessert?"

1. Saturn. 2. Pizza Hut. 3. Marlboro. 4. Kinney Shoe Corp. 5. Chanel. 6. The American Heart Association. 7. Palmolive. 8. Zenith. 9. Michelin. 10. Jell-O.

I will host the following upcoming trivia events: St. Louis Community College at Meramec Alumni Association Trivia on Saturday, Oct. 2; call 984-7551.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Entertainment and Trivia Show" at 10 p.m. Sundays on KMOX Radio (1120 AM).

Horoscope

THURSDAY, MAY 20

Though generosity and love are amplified during the Leo moon, today's excitement and drama also create some unmistakable ego inflations. If a loved one is difficult to rein in, it may be time to live and let live. At least establish what is worth fighting for before jumping into the ring. Compromise is key, so avoid rigidity.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 20) Life gives generously to you this year. Circulate this month to make valuable money contacts. You're the star on the social scene in June and will attract lovers through platonic friends. Next month's investment is stellar. Proposals come this summer, but think them over for a while. Your best signs for love are Capricorn and Virgo. Your lucky numbers are 1, 29, 39, 49 and 41.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Rumors are rampant, and few of them are credible. You should stop holding your feelings back and simply say the words a loved one has been dying to hear. Your personal goal could conflict with the plans of loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Consider the source of tension in your home life, as things can be easily solved today. A flexible attitude may smooth things over. Someone special may be on your wavelength and will help you express your ideas more clearly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) Powerful allies assist you from behind the scenes. Keep secrets. Material gains through business associations are likely this afternoon.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) Events take place that bring a reconciliation with an ex-flame. Foreign travel looks favorable. Moderate physical exertions can be good for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Show that you can hold your own in a partnership. Make sure your sources are credible. If others gloss over the details, ask questions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your energy mesmerizes someone special. Get directed toward a specific goal, not abstractions. You can make a difference in issues that concern you. Time seems to be running out, but you can ask for an extension.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be forthright in your dealings with authority figures or public agencies, and you'll get more help than you thought. Planning sessions are productive. Your cleverness gets you to places you've only dreamed about.

Carlyle Lake opens camping reservations

Outdoor recreation opportunities are available at Carlyle Lake over the Memorial Day weekend.

Reservable and walk-up campsites are available at Dam West, Coles Creek and Boulder. Group camping reservations at McNair areas D and E can be made by calling the Carlyle Lake Project Office at 594-2484.

When all Corps of Engineers and Hazlet State Park camping areas fill to their capacity before the weekend, overflow camping will be made available at the East Spillway Recreation Area.

Interpretive programs will be presented at each of the campgrounds during the holiday weekend along with dam tours at 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.
